EXPLORING WORLDVIEWS: GENDER AND EDUCATION

1. Modern Worldview

The Modern worldview represents a progressive approach to gender and education. It acknowledges the importance of equality and inclusivity, promoting equal access to quality education for all genders. This view emphasizes the significance of breaking traditional gender stereotypes, encouraging individuals to pursue their educational aspirations irrespective of societal expectations.

2. Traditional Worldview

The Traditional worldview reflects deep-rooted cultural norms and beliefs regarding gender roles in education. It often perpetuates traditional stereotypes, prescribing specific roles for males and females within educational settings. However, it recognizes the value of preserving cultural heritage when it comes to educating future generations.

3. Postmodern Worldview

The Postmodern worldview challenges conventional notions surrounding gender and education. It promotes a more fluid understanding of gender identity, recognizing that individuals may not fit into traditional binary categories. This viewpoint encourages critical thinking about how educational systems can be more inclusive and sensitive towards diverse gender identities.

4. Integrative Worldview

Integrative worldviews seek to bridge the gaps between various perspectives on gender and education by embracing diversity while acknowledging historical contexts. They aim to create an environment where multiple viewpoints coexist harmoniously by recognizing both individual rights as well as collective needs.

Join us at our thought-provoking event as we dive deeper into these different worldviews concerning Gender and Education! Gain valuable insights that will empower you in advocating for a fairer, more inclusive educational landscape!

GENDER AND EDUCATION

1 Gender includes the social, psychological, cultural, and behavioral aspects of being a man, woman, or other gender identity. Depending on the context it may include sex-based social structures and Gender expression.

2 Most cultures use a gender binary. This is where gender is divided into two categories and people are considered part of one or the other (Men; Boys; Women; Girls), those who are outside these groups may fall under the umbrella term non-binary.

3 Education is the transmission of knowledge, skills, and character traits. The term can also refer to mental states and qualities of educated people. Education socializes children into society by teaching them cultural values and and norms. it equips them with the skills needed to become productive members of the 4 Formal education happens in a complex institutional framework, like public and private schools. non-formal education is also structured but happens outside formal schooling system. it is unstructured learning that take place through daily experiences. Formal and non-formal education are divided into levels.

5 Strategies to Combat the Issue:

- 1.Addressing all students and learners equally, instead of girls and boys try to use students or friends, (Any wonderful category our pre School uses.
- 2.learning about children and students as individuals.
- 3.Hiring Teachers according to their Qualification and Efficiency to teach, not according to their Gender
- 4.Teachers should create a safe space and challenge stereotypes when they hear them.
- 5.Diminish stereotyped ideas about whats suitable for boys and girls that can limit children's opportunities to develop.
- 6.Educators should ensure that learners know very well that they can become what ever they want to become in future (Career Wise), without having to worry about their gender

MOTIVATION

Societal issue affection education : GENDER AND EDUCATION

My teammates have a fairly relevant point of view of the social issue (Gender and Education) which is one of the outstanding issue the education system has faced. One of the worldviews my fellow mate has pointed that can have a negative impact in the field of education is the Traditional worldview.

This worldview sees the universe as God's creation and finds the truth and knowledge in tradition customs and culture. As it has happened before in the traditional customs and believes males were considered the most relevant people than woman for a long time. My mate has raised the point this worldview can somehow lead to Inequality, where males will be recommended to high position work. I fully support this point because this worldview is based on traditional customs and believe it will extremely affect the education system since it will bring injustice to women as their rights will be limited they will not get the high position jobs because of their gender , their potential of doing the high ranking jobs like being the school principal or deputy principal which they qualify for will be abolished because of the customs of this worldview. I emphasise that this worldview will be a problem to the system of education.

Another worldview that shows that gender and education can be viewed as noteworthy issue in the filed of education is the Modern worldview. This worldview reveals that logic, human thinking, and empirical science all contribute to the discovery of knowledge. This simply implies that empirical research and the scientific method are highly valued in modernity. As a result, there is now a focus on educational research to guide teaching methodologies, curriculum creation, and assessment plans in the field of education. Measurement of learning outcomes, the identifying of best practices, and ongoing process improvement are all goals of contemporary education. This means that if the researched information support only males' involvement in education, then it will be implemented in the teaching and learning and that will lead to inequality between the genders, women will not be prioritized, and their capability will not be shown to the world of which I support.

Moreover, my group have pointed out that another worldview that can reveals that gender and education issue is important in the field of education is the Postmodern worldview. The deconstruction of conventional gender norms and categories is encouraged by postmodernism. It highlights that gender is a social construct rather than a static biological characteristic and that societal gender norms can restrict people's access to educational opportunities and life experiences. Postmodernism emphasizes the necessity to confront and alter existing norms within the context of education by dismantling them. This means that this worldview can help in abolishing the ideas of inequality between genders in education it reveals that all what was done to show inequality will be stopped. This is a motivation that reveals how gender and education an issue in education.

Press Statement- Principles of Social Justice and Diversity.

Greetings everyone.

Vanderbijlpark, 11 Sept, "Social justice is fundamental in education and this lies with the fundamentals of fairness, equity and inclusivity". Education must prioritize fairness equity, and inclusivity for social justice, meeting learner's needs and building a better, more equal future.

Social justice is based on the following fundamentals:

1. ACCESS- Access to quality education for both girls and boys is crucial. It is unfortunate that socioeconomic status often determines who gets quality education. Quality education is associated with better opportunities for employment and economic growth. Those who cannot access high quality education due their socioeconomic status, are then subjected to poverty and unemployment.
2. EQUALITY- In our democratic country, all learners, regardless of gender, now receive equal resources, material, and teaching. More females are pursuing subjects and careers in Science, Technology, Engineering, and Mathematics.
3. PARTICIPATION- It is important for learners to have a chance to speak up in schools when decisions that affect them are being made. After all, social justice means putting learners needs first.
4. RIGHTS- Human rights in education means everyone has access to basic education regardless of their gender and socioeconomic status.

TRADITIONAL WORLDVIEW.

Traditional worldviews see the universe as God-created, finds knowledge in traditions and the way in which things are usually done. They emphasize the need for social rules, law, and order. Their strength lies in group commitment, discipline, social values and rules. This worldview become dangerous when it comes to the concept of gender and education especially with the fundamental of equality. It can claim that careers in science, technology, engineering and mathematics are reserved for males, and that domestic careers are for females on bases of gender roles. They may also encourage single sex schools which can promote sexism and limited experiences.
